

Reformation at 500: The reformation, institutional change and state capacity

Monday, October 2, 2017

12-2pm

Abramson Family Founder Room, SIS

Co-sponsored by the Kay Spiritual Life Center and the Global Economy and Development SIS Research cluster.

This session is part of a 9 week AU campus wide reflection

(<http://www.american.edu/ocl/kay/Reformation-at-500.cfm>) on how the Protestant Reformation shaped our western world. Please join SIS Professor Daniel Bernhofen in welcoming Professor Noel Johnson from George Mason University to speak about “The idea of religious freedom, state capacity and the reformation”, Dr. Ralf Meisenzahl from the Federal Reserve to speak about “Reformation law, public goods provision and economic growth” and Dr. Sigrun Kahl from Princeton University to speak about “The politics of salvation: the reformation and modern welfare reform”.